Have you or someone you know lost a loved one...or a dear friend or a four-legged friend? Have you suffered a broken heart or a broken leg? Are you worried by loss of health...loss of wealth...loss of job...or loss of perspective?

Whether the loss is temporary or permanent, this book will help you find courage to get on with getting on. When you've lost whatever it is that's important in your life, it's important to find hope. The inspiring words of others, who have survived tough times and walked that rocky road in the past, can help you on your path today to create your own tomorrows.

The author understands coping with change from both a professional and personal perspective...from an orphanage in Canada, to carrying the Olympic torch on the day of the opening ceremony of the Sydney 2000 Olympics; from her adoptive parents dying of cancer when she was 21, to her own recovery as a cancer survivor; from arriving in Australia jobless, to being named Australian Executive Woman of the Year.

This book contains her favourite quotes about overcoming adversity. They have helped her continue her journey in times of deepest despair, and can help you and those you love.

A great gift book and royalties go to the Cancer Council of NSW
